

BATTLE FOR GERMANY GROWS MORE VIOLENT

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

CHINA'S fiery rebuttal of British Premier Churchill's recent assertion that she had received lavish American military help is understandable, although the term "lavish" is relative and one could make out a fair case for both sides.

The cold truth is that, despite America's fine contribution, China hasn't enough military material of any sort to dust a flute.

The spokesman for the Chinese military council in Chungking didn't exaggerate when he declared that "determination has had to be their substitute for firepower, and in the defense of their provinces they have willingly accepted staggering losses."

The Chinese aren't afraid to die. But you can't win simply by dying.

That was the situation when I was in Chungking last year. It has been the situation ever since. And it will remain the situation until the Allies are able to invade China in a big way and open up a feasible supply route. Continued American air transport from India, and a revival of the serpentine Burma road through the primeval mountain wilderness will be helpful, but they cannot carry more than an infinitesimal amount of the supplies which China must have if she is to wage real war.

Establishment of an adequate supply route into China will require a major operation. It might mean an Allied amphibious invasion of the south coast—a great undertaking. It might be achieved by invading the Malay peninsula from the Indian coast and driving across Siam and French Indo-China into China proper. Once a route is opened up, a great amount of shipping will have to be assigned to the task of transporting supplies from the other side of the world.

THE JAPANESE of course are fully aware of the likelihood of some such move. Their current invasion of Fukien province on China's southeastern coast, and their attempt to open up the Hankow-Canton railway through south central China, are recognition of the position.

So that's China's situation of near-impossibility—a highly dangerous one—but let's not leave the subject without a word on the "lavish" side of Uncle Sam's contribution. The spokesman of the Chinese military council himself landed the services rendered by the Yankee transport fleet and by the United States 14th air force in China. His point was that, while these units have done yeoman's work, the help has been inadequate.

DELAY BONDS ON RESERVOIR

Council Defers Issue Until First of Year; Work To Commence

Tabling legislation to issue mortgage bonds of $60,000 for the construction of the proposed 3,000-gallon water reservoir until the first of the year, city council last night instructed Service Director Frank K. Wilson to proceed at once with the initial phases of the work on a large water basin southwest of the city.

Although action on the bond issue has been postponed because of alterations necessary in the estimates and costs, Councilman Arch Wentz, chairman of the water committee, explained that council's action will in no way hinder progress on the emergency program.

Wentz said postponement was asked on the bond legislation because new estimates place the cost of the reservoir at a higher figure than the $110,000 originally planned. He said adjustments would have to be made and added that advice from City Auditor Karl Webster and City Solicitor Henry Reese urged postponement of the legislation until prices and labor costs were lower or more stabilized.

Work Can Start Now
Grading and pipe laying to the site of the large basin can be started at once with money already available in the water works fund. Until this work is completed, the turn to DELAY BONDS, Page 8

BELGRADE LOOMS BEFORE RUSSIANS

Soviets, Aided by Yugoslav Partisans, Only 40 Miles Away

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Oct. 4.—Russian machine gunners in American jeeps with Yugoslav partisans acting as guides, scoured westward along the Danube less than 20 miles from Belgrade today.

Nearly all Yugoslav territory east of the big elbow formed by the confluence of the Danube and Tisza rivers was reported swept clean of German resistance by Red army forces advancing like a flood from the foothills of the Transylvania Alps more than 50 miles beyond the Danubian iron gate.

Scouts of Marshal Tito's partisan army ferried across the Danube to meet the Russians on the northern flank and help lead them westward toward the Yugoslav capital, field dispatches said.

While still hammering at the frontiers of Hungary, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky shifted a powerful armored task force from southwestern Romania with the assignment to free the Yugoslav capital.

The rich farming country of the Yugoslavia-Romania border fell in one swoop to the Russian push. If the present Russian pace is maintained the embattled Serbian population of Belgrade may see a Red army victory parade before the weekend.

ALFRED SMITH DEAD; ASPIRED TO PRESIDENCY

Former New York Governor Had Been Ill Since Aug. 10

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Alfred E. Smith, 70, native of New York City's East Side, four times governor of New York state and 1928 Democratic presidential candidate, died today.

Death came to the man who made the brown derby famous at 6:20 a. m. (EWT) in Rockefeller Institute, Dr. Raymond P. Sullivan, his physician, said lung congestion and acute heart failure were the causes. He had been transferred to the institute Sept. 23 from St. Vincent's hospital where he had been treated for an intestinal and liver disturbance since Aug. 10.

Only last night a dozen red roses arrived at the hospital for him from President and Mrs. Roosevelt. It was Mr. Roosevelt who nicknamed Smith the "Happy Warrior" when he nominated Smith for the presidency in 1928.

The close political and personal friendship between Mr. Roosevelt and Smith took, however, in 1936 when Smith took what he called "a walk" from Mr. Roosevelt and the Democratic party and supported Alf Landon for the presidency. He again opposed the New Deal in 1940, stumping for Wendell Willkie.

Praised By President
In Washington, President Roosevelt issued a statement in which he said "The country loses a true patriot" in Smith's death. The President said in part:

"Al Smith had qualities of heart and mind and soul which not only endeared him to those who came under the spell of his dynamic presence in personal association but also made him the ideal of the multitude."

Smith had not taken an active part in politics in recent years, devoting himself to management of the Empire State building and aiding in bond drives and other civic activities.

A prominent Catholic, Smith knew he was dying "and was praying all the time," said Rev. Fr. John Healy, his pastor, who was present when death came. His death occurred five months to the day from the death of his wife, Catherine Dunn Smith.

Smith, known for his brown derby, clear and ever-present smile, rose from humble surroundings on Manhattan's East Side to a place where he never was out of the public eye.

He was defeated for the presidency in 1928 by Herbert Hoover. Although he carried only eight states he received 41.2 per cent of the total vote.

MAIL STATEMENTS ON PERSONAL TAX

LISBON, Oct. 4.—Statements for personal property taxes for the last half of 1943, which were mailed today, and real estate statements for the same period which will be mailed by Oct. 18, may be paid by Nov. 10.

Persons with both taxes to pay may wait until they receive the latter statement to send checks or make payment, thus saving taxpayers extra trips to the courthouse, the treasurer's office explained today.

Persons who have purchased property since April 11, 1943, are warned that they must notify the treasurer's office of the change in ownership of the property to receive a statement of tax valuation, since statements are sent to persons listed as owners on the rolls in the office.

Truck Driver Is Fined Here After Accident
Glen Fickey, 23, of Kent, was fined $20 and costs by Mayor R. R. Johnson following an accident involving two trucks on Route 30, four miles north of Lisbon at 3:30 a. m. today.

State patrolmen said Fickey stopped his truck on the highway and failed to put out flares or warning lights and a truck driven by John Hale, 37, of Toronto, crashed into the rear of the stopped vehicle. No one was injured but both trucks were damaged considerably.

OFFICIALS URGE LEVY APPROVAL

Voters Asked to Sanction Half-Mill For Operating Funds

Urging the adoption of the one half mill levy to be placed before Salem's voters on Nov. 7, city council last night emphasized the urgent need of the funds in order to operate the city government during pressing war times.

In calling the proposal to the attention of Salem's voters at the session last night, Councilman Harry Vincent explained that the levy, actually a decrease from the one mill passed two years, is "essential" to the operation of the city government on the scale on which it has been operated within the past two years.

The one mill levy adopted two years ago was passed by voters to cover current operating expenses and to allow for increases in salaries and wages of municipal employees. The one mill expires Jan. 1 and council's proposed budget for 1945 allows just half that amount to meet the expenses next year.

Because of a slight increase in the income to the city from taxes of various kinds, the levy is being reduced a half a mill. However, councilmen warn citizens that its passage is imperative to operational costs.

Vincent said council had slashed to rock bottom estimates on operating expenses and is asking the citizens of Salem to pass the measure to insure enough funds for operation.

Should incomes to the city soar higher than expected, he said, the one half mill levy would not be evied.

11 Detroit Plants Closed By Strike; War Output Hurt

(By Associated Press)
DETROIT, Oct. 4.—The huge war production program in the Detroit area was impaired today as maintenance workers in more than a score of factories began a strike which their union officers said earlier would be deferred pending a meeting with the War Labor board.

Before noon 3,000 maintenance employees had left their jobs, 11 plants had been closed down, and more than 50,000 workers had been sent home. Maintenance workers in 10 other factories had left their jobs and additional closings affecting another 50,000 or more workers were said by company spokesmen as probable.

The strike grew out of a dispute between the Maintenance, Construction and Powerhouse Workers' council of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) and the War Labor board over procedure for handling wage demands.

The council represents 38,000 maintenance men in more than 300 plants in the Detroit area, including virtually every large and small automotive plant. Union officials have said that a strike by all the maintenance workers would directly and indirectly affect several hundred thousand workers in the Detroit area and paralyze the war production effort.

Those Affected
Closed this forenoon were seven plants of the Briggs Mfg. Co., where 1,100 were on strike and 30,000 workers had been sent home; the Wyoming plant of the De Soto division of Chrysler Corp.; the Chrysler East Jefferson ave. plant and two factories of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Co.

Others affected but maintaining curtailed operations included the

Yanks Strike Above Aachen Toward Rhine

BULLETIN
RIMBERG, Germany, Oct. 4.—U. S. First army tanks crashed through a three-mile wide breach in the Siegfried defenses today, supporting the doughboy drive.

LONDON, Oct. 4.—American troops, knocking back German counterblows in battles of rising violence, struck into and beyond the breached Siegfried line above Aachen today, assaulting backstop defenses guarding Cologne and the Rhine.

U. S. Third army men 125 miles to the south fought as bitterly at Fort Driant, strongest of the ring of fortresses guarding Metz. Supreme headquarters announced capture of the fort, but a later front dispatch said doughboys were clinging to surface positions in the fort, which is honeycombed by tunnels, against increasingly furious enemy resistance.

The Americans broke into the fort on the Moselle river's west bank after a two-day battle, and set fire to crude oil sprayed into tunnels to underground fortifications in efforts to burn out the Germans. Other units captured Mazieres Les Metz, seven miles north of Metz.

TRUCE CALLED AT DUNKERQUE

20,000 Civilians Leaving Channel Port; Hostilities to Resume

(By Associated Press)
CANADIAN FIRST ARMY HEADQUARTERS, France, Oct. 4.—In the cold grey dawn today, 20,000 haggard civilians started evacuating Dunkerque, last channel port held by Germany, under a truce which will expire at 6 a. m. Friday. The Canadians and British then will resume their attacks.

The French started leaving the port at 6 a. m. after a 12-hour preliminary armistice. After the period for withdrawal an additional 12-hour truce will prevail during which the road will be dynamited and mined before hostilities are resumed.

The evacuation of the civilians through British infantry lines is in strongest contrast to the bloody withdrawal of the British expeditionary force from Dunkerque under fire and bomb in 1940.

The armistice terms were agreed upon at a conference yesterday by two representatives of British and German commanders. There was a strong likelihood that the enemy, as at Calais, will be ready to surrender shortly after cessation of the truce, although the garrison of 15,000 Nazis is about twice as large as that of Calais.

Dunkerque, 40 miles northwest of Lille, had a normal peacetime population of 35,000. In peace, its port could accommodate vessels up to 16,000 tons drawing 32½ feet of water.

Mr. Roosevelt Isn't Government

During the lull in the presidential speechmaking is a good time to remember again that voters are not called upon this year or any election year, to make a decision in a popularity contest between individuals. The purpose of a national election is to establish a government to run the country for the next four years. The votes cast for a chief executive and vice president are only part of the process. Equally important on the national ticket is election of representatives and senators, and it is a curious circumstance that the prospect here is for election of a Republican majority in the house of representatives, regardless of the outcome of the presidential race.

It is as though the electorate discerned clearly at the legislative level of government what it is being urged to see clearly at the executive level—that as a government the New Deal is washed up, regardless of what happens to Mr. Roosevelt in his bid for a fourth term. The probability that his personal popularity is blinding a great many voters to the political facts as they lie is illustrated of course, by the fact that virtually no one among the President's supporters wants to think of the prospect which would ensue if he were to be elected and succeeded before the end of his term by his running mate, Sen. Truman. The senator has been an able chairman of an important special committee, but no one thinks of him as being able to organize a government or to extemporize an administration out of the quarreling minorities which Mr. Roosevelt manages to reconcile after a fashion.

Partisanship, which is most active at the personal level in politics, has only limited appeal to so-called independent voters, who are supposed to hold the balance of power in this year's close election. But beyond the talking points of partisanship, there is the unalterable fact that the kind of government we are to have after next January is more important than the name of its chief executive—and that Gov. Dewey in this respect is the beneficiary of Mr. Roosevelt's own spotty record.

Aid to China

The disquieting effect of the current popular discovery that China is unable to carry out its role in the campaign against Japan should yield in due time to saner conclusions than those which have muddled American thinking about our Asiatic ally.

We have taken China's ability to fight Japan forever for granted. We have taken it for granted that our military strategists knew what they were doing. We have taken it for granted that when the time came to turn Allied power on Japan in full force China still would be carrying on its long, one-sided fight against Japan and would be on hand and fully prepared to close in for the kill.

All these assumptions now are being challenged by events. Japan plainly is hopeful of knocking China out of the war before the Allies can come to the rescue; the whole aspect of the Asiatic land campaign has been changed in recent weeks by evidence that Japan is carrying out a strategic plan on the mainland calculated to offset Allied strength on the sea.

The trouble is not that the Chinese are any less willing to fight than they have been throughout their long and bloody war with Japan, but that having fought so long they are less able to fight. There is no occasion for recriminations. But it was inevitable as the war wore on that Americans would learn more about the realities of China's plight and the inadequacy of the aid being received. That is the discovery now reaching the people—and it is not reassuring, though in the long run it may be the best thing that could have happened to reveal the proportions of the task in the Pacific theater.

Protect Homegrown Products

There is one thing that has come up in this presidential campaign that offends American pride—the insinuation that our politicians ever need to borrow any ideas from Hitler. Mr. Roosevelt made such a charge in his glib speech to the teamsters and a few days later his left-hand man, Sidney Hillman, also made a comparison with "Nazi propaganda."

This is a gratuitous slur on native ingenuity. It is hereby submitted, and not respectfully, that politicians in the United States have no need to ape the politicians of any other land; that they know more dirty holds and illegal tricks from childhood than the European politician picks up in a lifetime; that everything the Europeans know about hippodrome politics they learned from the United States the same way they learned about the weapons with which they periodically attempt to exterminate each other.

There always has been a distinctive flavor about national campaigns in the United States which no foreigner could improve on. Any native-born politician who couldn't think up better ideas than the relatively unimaginative Germans—even the unscrupulous Hitler—wouldn't be worth the electorate's consideration in any free American election. Compared with what we are used to when we get going, that foreign stuff is eyewash.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, October 5

Brilliant prospects are indicated by the lunar and mutual aspects of this day. It is probable that a sudden journey, incident to either business, professional interests or pleasure, may have inspired objectives, intuitive leads with intriguing and glamorous circumstances. There may be rich, and rare experiences, in which ideals and imagination may have a leading place in making decisions. Planning and change may be built upon premises outside the realm of reality, therefore should be profoundly reflected upon.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of exceptional experience in which large and far-reaching issues are at stake. This may concern a dramatic, artistic, literary or professional career, in which creative talents demand expression, beyond the realm of the practical or realistic. Glamour, bewilderment, highly stimulated emotional urges may give inspiration to unique talents. This may involve radical change, travel, adventure, demanding decisions as affecting the future career with major importance.

A child born on this day may be endowed with unusual creative talents, fitting it for a unique career, in which change, rare experiences or strange adventures combine for a romantic life.

Fire Prevention

By James Thrasher

Theoretically at least, this country observes Fire Prevention Week every year. Its impression upon the national consciousness is about as profound as that of National Chrysanthemum Week, or Arbor Day. And we keep right on having fires.

Perhaps Fire Prevention Week does some good at that, for our record is somewhat better than it was 20 years ago. But it is still nothing to brag about.

Last year serious fires swept the country at the rate of more than 1000 a day. Over 370,000 homes were destroyed or seriously damaged. That is more houses than there are in Cleveland. Ten thousand lives were lost in those fires, and thousands more were injured and maimed.

That most of these fires could have been prevented is an old story that needs telling again. So here are some simple precautions which everyone knows, but which might be checked again—and it's not necessary to wait for Fire Prevention Week, which begins Oct. 8, to do the checking:

Be sensible about matches and smoking; clean your heating plant and keep it in good repair; clear papers, rags, mattresses, old furniture from storage areas; cover inflammable roofing with fire-resistant material such as asphalt shingles; don't store or use explosive cleaning fluid; repair defective electrical equipment, and disconnect appliances when you are through using them; use metal containers for ashes, never wood or paper.

Infant Feeding by Formula

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
MODERN IDEAS about infant feeding have become much simplified from the time not so long ago when "preparing a formula" was supposed to require the combined services of a higher mathematician, an organic chemist and an expert pharmacist.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

One ancient principle, however, still retains its supremacy. There is no adequate substitute for mother's milk in the first few weeks or months of life. Mother's milk was made for human infants—that profound thought is not original with me—designed for their digestion and nutrition and suits them more perfectly than any other food. Every infant deserves and has the right to expect it will be nourished by mother's milk at the beginning of its life. Nothing else gives it quite such a good start.

But it need not be kept up as long as we used to believe. As I say, we have learned so much about artificial infant feeding that it is now not only simplified, but

Manufactured Infant Foods

There are plenty of manufactured infant foods that can be purchased and except those that have too much sugar and give the baby a false look of health by making it fat, they are all quite healthy and proper. Some babies have the sort of digestion that can handle only one of these special formulas.

But for practical purposes cow's milk is the best, cheapest and most available basis for substitute infant feeding.

Human milk and cow's milk have the same chemical composition, but the proportions of the essential nutrients are somewhat different. Cow's milk has about twice as much protein and about half as much sugar as mother's milk. The excess of protein doesn't make any difference. Excess protein produces no symptoms in infants, although the older textbooks used to have long lists of the horrors which might be caused by diet. An infant requires about 1 1/2 grams of protein per pound per day and cow's milk contains this in 1 1/2 ounces, so it is easy to calculate the required amount.

Amount of Sugar Needed

Sugar sufficient to bring cow's milk to the same content as mother's milk must be added. It does not make any difference what kind of sugar you use. Children's specialists have long since given up the idea that it has to be in form that is in mother's and cow's milk—lactose. You can use ordinary sugar out of the sugar bowl and the infant will digest it all right. But if your conscience feels better by having an exact imitation of mother's milk you can get lactose or maltose or dextrose at the grocery or drug store, or you can use cane sugar syrup.

The fat in mother's milk is somewhat more finely emulsified than in cow's milk, but this does not cause any digestive disturbances.

A formula then for an infant of average weight is:

Milk—12 ounces.

Added carbohydrate (sugar, syrup, lactose, dextrose or maltose)—1 ounce.

Water to make—18 ounces.

Since milk is deficient in Vitamin C and D, some orange juice and cod liver oil must be given the infant daily.

And the milk should be bacteriologically clean—pasteurized or boiled.

Steal Liquor With Hearse

BOSTON—Altonse Notazian, owner of a Dorchester tavern, will vouch that this story isn't just hearsay. Two men stole a hearse from an undertaking establishment, then broke into Notazian's store and loaded the wagon with $900 worth of liquor. The hearse was later found abandoned—more important—empty.

• SO THEY SAY

If anyone cries on my shoulder, ever lend-lase I always say that for every $100,000,000 we gave them we saved 100,000 soldiers lives. Even if we never get any of it back it will be money well spent.

THE STORY: Len and Sue Backley are entertaining Walt Hilyard and his family, new-comers to Salem, at dinner. Len has known Walt a long time but hasn't seen Margaret Hilyard in 20 years. He is thunderstruck at the changes in the once beautiful girl. She is fat and overdressed and seems to take a delight in making other people feel ill at ease. The dinner is a failure until the Beckleys' son, Tom, puts in a month's leave from his regiment in the South Pacific. Tom and the Hilyards' daughter, Jennifer, are entranced with one another.

THE dismal dinner was a success to Sue. She was so glad Tom was home that she was not even jealous of the young stranger who catered to his girl-friend. It was bliss enough for Sue that now and then her son reached out a hand as from far away and caught his mother's hand and squeezed it, and once he drew it to his lips and held it there, as he mumbled to Jennifer:

"Can you wonder that I'm so wonderful when you see what a Mom I've got? Dad deserves part of the credit, he thinks. Mom told me so, didn't you, Mom?"

"Yes, darling!"

It made Walt very happy to see Jennifer radiant. Her mother had greeted him the same way when he came back from his World War. But the Margaret of now had forgotten the Margaret of then. Her voice cut through the rosy mists: "Jennifer!"

"Yes, Mama."

"There's such a thing as manners, you know."

Tom answered for her: "I've just enlisted in the army, Mrs. Hilyard. She's building up the morale of the armed forces. If you had seen what I've been and not what I've not seen—"

He left that in the air as enough, and lowered his voice to murmur: "Jennifer, eh? You're mint-julip to me. Say, I've been sitting in the train all day. You couldn't take a little walk with me, could you? I thought along my own old moon fresh out of the South Seas. If you're tired I can carry you. I've had lots of practice carrying big wounded men."

"I think I can walk, Sergeant," said Jennifer. "At least part way."

They laughed at that as if it were the funniest audacity ever uttered by a heroine to a great hero come from the wars. Tom paused and looked at his father's latch-key and whispered to his mother not to wait up for him.

Then he dashed away with Jennifer. Sue and Len lived again their own untroubled youth, and were grateful to the girl who could offer their son beauty and romance after his loneliness and long horror.

Perhaps if Tom had been a rich young lieutenant or a colonel or even a famous hero, Margaret would have been pleased by her daughter's engagement. But Tom was only a private, with his rank striped on his sleeve instead of gleaming in silver or gold on his shoulders. Without saying a word Margaret managed to fill the air with protests against her daughter's bad taste. Her harsh eyes roused the anger of Sue and Len. The only fault they found with Jennifer was that she should have packed out such a mother for a handicap and a possible menace to Tom.

The dinner went flippety-flop from then on. Margaret ate angrily and punished her food, but did not sulk. Sue was thinking: "If she'd only starve her body instead of her mind, she wouldn't have such a shriveled little heart under that healthy chest expansion of hers."

Walt tried to make conversation by asking questions about Tom; and Len obliged with long recitals of Tom's battle experiences, his wounds and his promotions. But the two women sat and politely hated each other. Violet, however, did not conceal her interest. She leaned on Tom's chair and audibly approved the stories, with, "Bully for him!" "He's got the stuff!" and things like that. Finally she said without being asked:

"I'd a boy of me own in the army. It was with the tank corps."

"Was?" said Sue. "He's buried on the beach at Salerno."

When they left the dining room and went into the living room, Margaret's slow glance traveled everywhere with a critic's jaundiced eye. She brightened a bit at sight of the telephone, for its long cord was twisted. She rose heavily and straightened it with a laugh:

"A I always say, order is heaven's first law."

As somebody else said, order is your way of raising hell with somebody else's things. It was the patient Walt who was driven

WHAT TO SEND—WHERE TO SEND IT

THE ZERO HOUR for sending Christmas gifts to men and women of our fighting forces in every section of the globe fast approaches. It is presumed that by this time the importance of careful wrapping and extra-special care in addressing have been sufficiently impressed and standardized boxes are on the market. Locate on the map the area to which a package is to be sent and then note the official suggestions which are:

- 2 MIDDLE EAST—American dollar bills, wool swimming trunks, leather travel kits, brown civilian-type shoes, no perishable items.
- 3 PERSIAN GULF—Large-sized billfolds for large Iranian money; leather or fabric wrist-watch straps, hair oil, mouth wash and face lotion; bottle openers and can openers; tee shirts; sun glasses; moisture-proof cigarette cases; bowl or stick shaving cream.

SURPLUS PROPERTY BILL BECOMES LAW WITH FDR SIGNING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—Legislation setting up machinery for the disposal of an estimated $100,000,000 worth of war-accumulated surplus government plants and goods under procedures sharply defined by Congress was signed into law today by President Roosevelt.

A three-member board, to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the senate, will supervise the handling and disposition of surpluses, including their transfer from government agencies, a job presently handled in a more limited way by Surplus Property Administrator Will L. Claxton.

Under the new setup, which Clayton has described as "unworkable" and under which he has said he would not serve, the President would designate one of the three $12,000-a-year board members to serve as chairman in carrying out 20 overall objectives including:

Objectives Are Listed

Disposal of surplus property as promptly as feasible without fostering monopoly, unduly disturbing the economy or encouraging hoarding of supplies.

Wide distribution of surpluses to consumers at fair prices.

Maximum aid in the re-establishment of a peacetime economy of free independent enterprise, the development of the maximum of independent operators in trade, industry and agriculture, and to stimulate full employment.

The measure directs the board to

United States Seeking To Grow Scarce Jap Drugs

(By United Press) AUSTIN, Tex.—Experimenters directed at finding relief for war-shortened supplies of belladonna, pyrethrum and Japanese mint, all used in making medicines, are being carried on at the University of Texas. Dr. Carl C. Albers, supervisor of the university experimental gardens, hopes to determine how the plants may be raised in this section. Belladonna, a native European plant, is sometimes called "deadly nightshade," furnishes an extraction used to relieve pain. It also is used for dilating the eyes. Japan was the chief source for the Japanese mint and pyrethrum. The mint is used for making menthol, and pyrethrum is an insecticide. Dr. Albers said experiments have already determined that farmers in the southwest may find growing of Japanese mint a diversion crop to tide them over during years when prices drop on regular commercial crops. After the last war, he said, the price of mint soared to $25 a pound, but in 1941 it plummeted to $2.50.

Yanks Bombard Towns Only As Last Resort In Drives

BY TOM WOLF
NEA Staff Correspondent
WITH THE THIRD ARMY IN FRANCE—This is a composite story, with highlights taken from several French towns, describing what it's like when a city is liberated during the Third army's race for the Rhine.

This city has about 10,000 people. Spearheads of American armor passed here yesterday leaving "a pocket of resistance"—in this case some 2000 Germans who hold the town and a small river which runs just west of the town. The enemy has put strong points along the roads west of the river—hoping to hold us up before we are able to cross into the town.

The divisional commander gives orders, adding "I don't want that town shelled. The Germans don't have artillery there and I don't want the town knocked around when it's completely unnecessary."

Down the road just a few hundred yards from the Germans, company commanders are sending out patrols which bypass the strong points, cross the river, and reconnoiter the town. Other infantry units systematically feel out points of enemy fire and work to clean them out.

Meanwhile, many division supply vehicles are parked along the sides of the roads waiting to move forward. They are an incredible sight, for around each of these vehicles is a little cluster of French civilians. MOVE UP WITH PATROLS We moved up with the patrols, working their way slowly, cautiously, from house to house in the city's suburbs. Observation posts were in top floors of houses. One of these consisted of a small balcony off the bedroom. The family lunched calmly downstairs directly over the dining room. The mirror in the bedroom was shattered, an imprint of machine gun bullets which the night before whizzed completely through the house and directly over the baby's bassinet.

By midafternoon, after relatively little resistance (which nonetheless cost perhaps a dozen American lives) several companies of infantry had pushed into the city. The Germans had withdrawn to the wood behind the town. Jeeps and trucks began to descend on the city. Suddenly the city came to life. German signs and swastikas were torn down and burned. Streets became a flag-decked mass of kissing, waving, cheering humanity. Every jeep, every truck, every person in American uniform was mobbed by the crowd, which insisted on presenting flowers, bread, sandwiches, wine, cognac, and champagne. The infantry's greatest battle that day was getting through the town sober.

A dead sure way to tell whether or not a town has been liberated is by the flags. If American troops have passed through the town, every building will be flying the tricolor. Usually they'll also be flying a home-made edition of what the average Frenchman conceives to be the Stars and Stripes.

LOOK OUT! If there are no flags in the town, look out. There may be no Germans left in the town, but it's a cinch no Americans have been there yet. Sometimes, despite an all-day drive, you won't catch up with the spearhead units. They often push almost as fast as you. So you get a hotel room in a small town. It will be a good dinner. After it will be talk, always the same talk: the French will deplore the behavior of the Boche, apologize for the lack of electricity (which is universal throughout France), introduce young men who today came out of four years' hiding to avoid forced labor, tell tales of life in German prisons from which at least one of the present company will have escaped. On the American side you are expected to supply news in general and specific news of Aunt Minnie. If you are careless enough to admit you've been in Cherbourg, Rennes, Laval, Lemans or Paris.

During the evening most of the town will drop in for a drink or two. The FBI, armed to the teeth and wearing the Cross of Lorraine brassard on a variety of civilian clothes, will dart in and out looking pleased and important—as indeed they should.

LOWER TAXES IN DAYS AFTER WAR IS DEWEY PLEDGE

(By Associated Press)
ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey stood committed today to a program of cutting peacetime taxes on individuals and business if the Republicans win in November.

The Republican presidential nominee, in a nationwide radio address last night, called for simplification of what he termed "our existing, confused and complicated tax laws" which he said threatened to form "a road-block in the way" of post-war progress.

The New York governor asserted that the annual cost of government—considering the likelihood of a $300,000,000,000 national debt and the necessity of maintaining "adequate armed forces"—would require federal levies far above prewar levels.

"But it is utterly impossible to suppose that we can support our government by levying heavy taxes upon a dwindling national income," he declared in office-study in the executive mansion.

"Our first aim," he continued, "must be to increase our national income. . . . It is far better to have a low tax rate with a national income of $150,000,000,000 than a national income of $76,000,000,000 and a high tax rate, as we had under the New Deal at its peacetime best."

His first step, Dewey said, would be to urge revision of personal exemptions, "so that the man who makes as little as $11 a week no longer has an income tax taken out of his pay envelope."

"However necessary these taxes may be in wartime," he declared, "there can be no excuse for them in peace."

Dewey complained that some of the laws on the books had been used to keep Americans "from getting ahead."

Dewey apparently planned to await a broadcast tomorrow night by President Roosevelt before going to work on the final draft of a speech the Republican nominee will make at Charleston, W. Va., Saturday night.

CARDS FAVORED OVER BROWNIES IN MOST BOOKS

Popular Favor Is Going to Underdog Americans, Odds to Nationals

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Luke Sewell's St. Louis Browns, the boys from the other side of the tracks, dived to match Mort Cooper, the Cardinals ace, with Denny Galehouse, a veteran curve ball artist who didn't win his first game until July 20, in today's opener of the first All-St. Louis World Series.

Despite the record books and the season averages which gave the National leaguers the "paper" edge, the pendulum of popular support appeared to be swinging toward the underdog Brownies who have been picking up such fancy titles as "The Team of Destiny" and "The Cinderella Kids."

Odds Favor Cards

These odds makers, however, still followed the figures for the price on today's game was 1 to 2 and on the series 2 to 5 with the Redbirds favored.

Selection of Galehouse upset the dopesters who had expected Sewell to lead with Nels Potter, but the skipper said, "Galehouse is my man" and offered no explanation.

Cloudy skies and a continual threat of rain hovered over the final dress rehearsal at Sportsman's park but the weather man promised improved conditions for today's big event. Eager bleacher fans started a line before noon yesterday.

(By Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—Light rain began falling here about 8 o'clock today and the weather bureau said prospects were that it would continue most of the afternoon with little change from the minimum temperature of 62 degrees.

terday and club officials, with all reserves sold, counted on 35,000 for the first game, scheduled for 2 p. m. (Central War Time).

Tavern arguments raged on the intriguing questions of whether the Browns' "hot" streak would lift them past Billy Southworth's gang or whether the Cardinals would be able to regain the edge they lost in late season.

Managers Experimenting

Both Sewell and Southworth said they would stick with their regular lineups, although the Browns' boss reserved the right to change his mind in right field where he has named Gene Moore over Milt Byrnes. Billy the Kid said he would insert Augie Bergamio in left if Danny Litwiler were ready.

Pitching plans today were strictly a jumble. Sewell parried off questioners with "you can't tell, it might rain all winter," and Southworth also was taking it one game at a time. An infected tooth forced Sig Jakucki to miss the final tune-up and may alter turns on the Brownie staff.

Cooper hadn't pitched since Sept. 24 but worked in hitting practice on the road was reported ready. Big Mort, who won 22 and lost seven, was no surprise choice as he had been a standout all season. As usual, Brother Walker will do the catching.

Galehouse a Surprise

Galehouse almost didn't play this year but the peculiar twists of a wartime season combined to give him his first chance in the fall classic when it was least expected.

Deciding to stay at his war plant job in Cleveland in the spring Denny finally caught the "fever" and told the Browns he would join them on Sundays only. The experiment was not successful as he lost three in a row and was being pointed out as the horrible example of how baseball is a full time job.

The Cuyahoga Falls (O.) right-hander became a full time performer July 20 and celebrated with the first of a five-game victory march. Myron "Red" Hayworth was named by Sewell as his opening catcher.

WEST COAST CENTER RATED BEST LINEMAN

By TED MEIER

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Roger Harding, 190-pound center for the University of California, was selected today as the outstanding college football lineman of the week in the first Associated Press poll of the grid season.

Harding, a 21-year-old civilian student from Walnut Creek, Calif., playing his second year on the varsity, was the big reason why underdog California upset UCLA 6-0. In the first period he broke and blocked an attempted punt, scooped up the ball and raced 20 yards for the only touchdown. In the third period he broke up a UCLA threat by intercepting a pass on his own 26-yard line.

Nick Collias, an 18-year-old freshman chatteringbox guard at Wisconsin, was second choice of linemen whose feats usually are overlooked. Collias, a Chicago lad, twice smashed through to throw Northwestern ball carriers for losses in the fourth period, protecting Wisconsin's slim 7-6 lead.

SPORT CHATTER

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Columbia's Lou Little explains that he adopted the "TZ" formation this year because he has a light backfield and no good blockers. He also maintains that lateral passing never can become an integral part of American football because it seldom is possible to work the ball downfield into the open where lateral is so good.

Andy Kerr of Colgate, long a staunch upholder of the double-wing system, now is using what he calls a "T-Z" formation, which mixes up several styles. All of which is just further evidence to show that grid coaches in these wartime seasons are doing a lot of experimenting and may come up with some fancy new doings for the post-war "boom" times.

FAIR EXCHANGE

Instead of winning medals in Europe, Sgt. Red Simmons of Rochester, N. Y., lost them there. In 1939 and 1940, Red bowled two perfect games and received a ring and gold belt buckle from the American Bowling Congress in recognition of the feat. During the campaign in Africa, Red was taken prisoner and when he reached an internment camp a German soldier made off with the ring and buckle. Simmons probably is satisfied, however, he escaped from the camp after seven months.

Paul Walker, Yale's star end, set a college record by compiling a 98.8 average in his Navy V-12 studies. The reason the Trans-America Pro Football league passed up Omaha was that Nebraska alumni howled that the pros might take the edge off the university's football. The Browns have invited

Where the Real World Series Is To Be Played

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

DETROIT—How the Browns could use Walt Judnich now. Their pre-Pearl Harbor center fielder smacked five home runs in one game in Honolulu, and each was well hit.

It is also barely possible that the Yankees could find a spot for Joe Gordon. The special correspondent in the Pacific reports that the versatile Judnich, Judnich's teammate at shortstop for the Seventh AAF team, surprised everybody by batting left-handed for awhile. It didn't make much difference to the Oregon Express. He batted out two triples in one game while swinging from the wrong side.

Berge writes that every trained baseball man in the islands is of the opinion that third baseman Bob Dillinger and first baseman Ferris Fain of the Seventh AAF can't miss in the majors. The bespectacled Dillinger led the Hawaiian League and Central Pacific Association in batting and stolen bases. He was coming up to the Browns from the Toledo Mudhens when the war intervened.

Fain is a shifty first baseman who performed with the San Francisco Seals, a Yankee youngster with bright prospects, Charley Silvers, formerly of the Kansas City farm, is the Seventh AAF catcher.

Joe Dimaggio, Gordon, Judnich and Fain are potential home run manufacturers every time they step to the plate.

With winning streaks of 20 games in one circuit and 30 in the other, the Seventh AAF won the championships of the Hawaii League and the C. P. A. Darlie Lodigiani is the second baseman, Mike McCormick rounds out an outfield with an established big league center fielder in that pasture. No open holes there. Don Lang of Kansas City and the Reds is the extra outfielder. The pitching staff is headed by Red Ruffing and Johnny Beazley, with the stars of the 1942 World Series backed by hand-cuffers from the top minors.

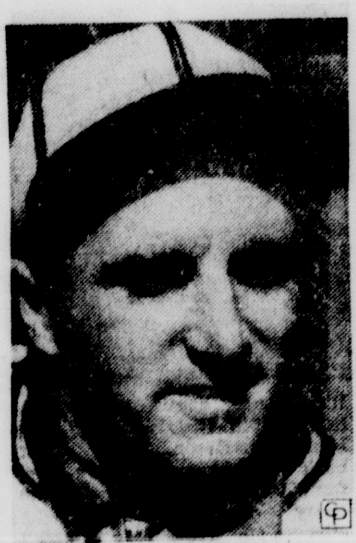

Many of the other clubs possess big league material, especially the Navy, which is assembling an all-star array under Bill Dickey to oppose a DiMaggio-managed Seventh AAF in a best four out of seven Army-Navy World Series.

Recent additions to the Navy group are Johnny Vander Meer, Virgil Trucks and Schoobey Rowe, bolstering a squad which includes Hugh Casey, Walt Masterson, Vern Olsen, Ken Sears, Johnny Mize, Johnny Lucadello, Pee Wee Reese, Al Brancato, Eddie Pellagrini, Barney McCosky and Joe Grace.

Even with all this talent, Pfc Johnny Berge and other knowing baseball men in the flowery archipelago like the Seventh AAF. They have seen the soldiers assert their authority too often, watching them blast Olsen, Masterson and Casey from the box.

Nothing is too good for the GI's and they're getting none the worst of it in the way of World Series.

J. EDWARD WRAY, VETERAN WRITER, SAYS BROWNS BEST

By CHARLES DUNKLEY

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 4.—J. Edward Wray, 71-year-old sports editor of the St. Louis Post Dispatch, the only one of 68 baseball writers in the pre-season Associated Press poll to pick both the St. Louis Cardinals and Browns to win the National and American League pennants, today picked the Browns to triumph in the World Series.

"A red-hot team against one that is cold," Wray said. "I figure the Browns will win four out of six games."

Wray sides with a majority of the baseball writers covering the series. Twenty-six of the 51 polled by the Associated Press who expressed opinions favor the Browns, most of them within six games.

The ballots included:

Godon Cobblestick, Cleveland Plain Dealer: The Browns in six.

Sam Otis, Cleveland Plain Dealer: Cards in six.

Jack Hand, Associated Press, New York: The Browns.

Orlo Robertson, Associated Press, New York: Cardinals in five games.

Franklin Lewis, Cleveland Press: Browns in six.

Frank Crawford, Associated Press, Kansas City: Cards in six.

Bob French, Toledo, O., Blade: Browns in six.

Charles Dunkley, Associated Press, Chicago: The Browns in three pitching and maybe six games.

Pete Gray, the one-armed outfielder they recently bought to see the World Series "on the club."

SERVICE DEPT.

Paul Warner, Waite Hoyt and Paul Derringer have been added to the USO-camp shows baseball tourists who will entertain service men overseas, replacing Billy Jurgens, Don Gutteridge and Lefty Gomez, who had to drop out. Another addition is Jim (Ropper) Collins, ex-Cardinal who has become terrifically popular as Albany Eastern League manager.

Youngstown Aviatix Pilots Fortresses At Lockbourne Air Base

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Oct. 4.—An attractive 24-year-old Youngstown girl is showing the men at Lockbourne army air base that women can handle Flying Fortresses.

The girl, Margaret Kirchner, is the only Ohio woman test pilot for the big four-engine bombers, and her instructor, Maj. John J. Hurney, rates her with the best.

The tall brunette, known as "Peg," is the only member of the Women's Air Force Service Pilots (WASPs) stationed at Lockbourne here. She has 500 hours of flying time, 300 testing the B-17s. The only other 16 WASPs in the country who handle the big forts started with her at Lockbourne and now are stationed elsewhere.

Peg was a former school teacher but while she was a junior in Youngstown college, the flying bug got her and she enrolled in a civilian pilot training course. From then on, it was no more teaching but instead a desire to fly.

After becoming a licensed pilot, she joined the WASPs and trained at Sweetwater, Tex. Part of the 300 hours of flying there included 10-hour missions, battling storms and hull so heavy "it made big dents on the plane."

Although Gen. H. H. Arnold announced from Washington the WASPs are going out of business Dec. 20 because "there soon will be enough men available for all military flying jobs at home and overseas," Margaret intends to keep on flying. She wants to pilot the big passenger planes after the war.

4-H CLUB BANQUET PLANNED SATURDAY

LISBON, Oct. 4.—The annual banquet of the 4-H clubs of Columbiana county and those who have served as advisors to the young people of the clubs will be held Saturday evening in the dining room of the Christian church here.

Only those who have been in 4-H club work either eight, nine or 10 years will be eligible to attend the banquet which will be sponsored by Miss Emma Ramseyer, county home demonstration director.

A special program is being planned. During the evening awards will be given for completed projects, and to those who have completed 10 years of club work.

Certificates also will be granted to club members who have completed five years of club work and to advisors who have completed four years of service.

DELAY BONDS

bond issue is not needed and both city officials believe it would be advantageous to wait until that time to issue the bonds for the additional funds.

The measure had received two readings previously and was up for a third reading and adoption at the session last night.

A second reading was given an ordinance authorizing the service director to use laborers at the city pumping station on other city work. Present rulings require an additional laborer on hand at all times at the station to assist the regular engineer.

Plan Special Session
Councilman Fred Shaffer asked that council hear what he termed "the minority's viewpoint" on the measure at the next meeting. Shaffer proposes to ask an engineer from the station to the next council meeting and have him express his views on the change advocated by the water committee.

Councilman Harry Vincent, chairman of the finance committee, reported that he had contacted Dr. R. T. Holzbach, health commissioner, on a suggested meeting of the council and board of health. The meeting, requested by council at its session two weeks ago, has been set for 7:30 p. m. Thursday in the council chamber.

About Town

Sees Air Travel Grow

The future of transportation lies in faster and safer airships, Rotary club members were told at their meeting Tuesday in the Memorial building by Harry Carliss, sales manager of the Deming company. Railroad trains have attained about their maximum in speed and will not be serious competitors of the planes, he added.

Carliss discussed the comforts and conveniences of air travel and predicted the skies will be full of air liners in the post-war period. He said greater progress in aviation had been made since the start of the war than in all the other years since the early days of the Wright brothers.

P. A. Presco was program chairman at the Rotary meeting.

Plan Training Classes

A training school for Methodist church school teachers and officers in northern Columbiana county will be held on Mondays from Oct. 9 to Nov. 13 in the Columbiana Methodist church. Sessions will open at 7:30. Special instruction will be given for workers of nursery, beginner, primary, junior, intermediate, youth, young adult and adult groups. There will be no registration fee.

Approximately 6,500 workers were idle for a time today at two Nash-Kelvinator Corp. plants in Lansing in a dispute over layoff procedure but they resumed work after a vote to await the outcome of conciliation.

The dispute involves wages paid CIO and AFL maintenance men. The CIO union, is demanding an investigation by WLB, claimed its men were paid less than AFL-affiliated employees and that it had failed in efforts to obtain "equalization" through WLB.

Members of a committee appointed by the council headed for Washington by plane yesterday but were grounded at Pittsburgh. WLB Chairman William H. Davis assured them by telegram, however, that the board would discuss the issue with them on their arrival.

THE THEATER

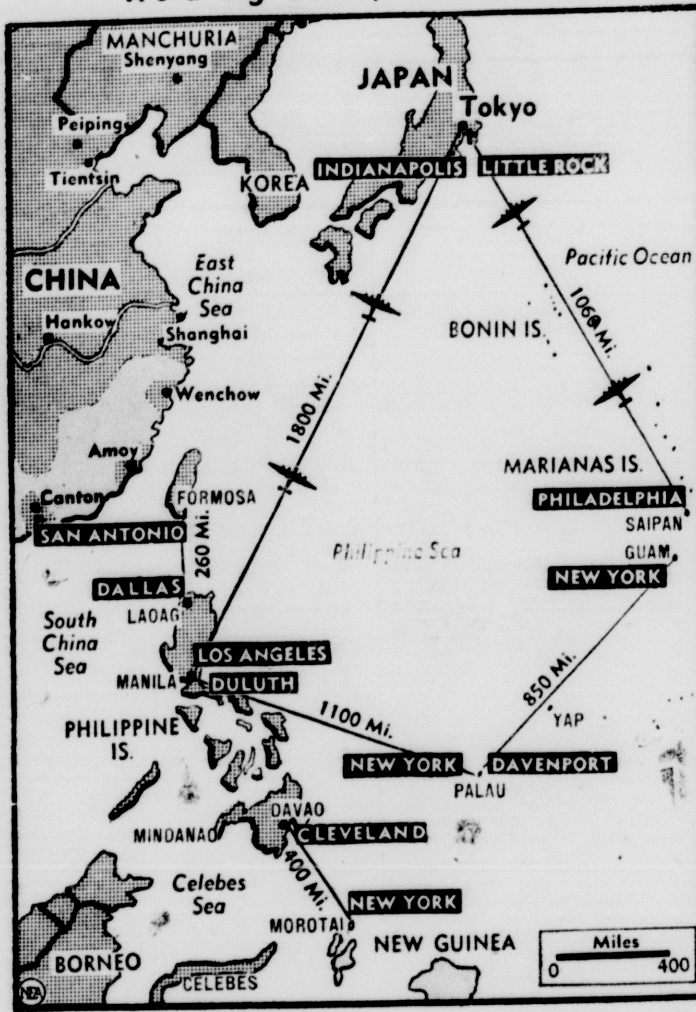

Jane Frazee and Joan Davis in a riotous scene from their latest picture "Kansas City Kitty," a song and dance festival with Bob Crosby.

Joan Davis heads the cast of "Kansas City Kitty," musical comedy which shows at the State tonight and Thursday. Bob Crosby and his band, Singer Jane Frazee, Erik Rolf and the Williams brothers, singing quartet, are in the film. Comedy strictly a la Davis is the principal quality of the story of a "learn the piano by ear" teacher, played by Miss Davis, who steps in to rescue a languishing song-publishing firm from the sheriff.

Several new songs are heard, including "Pretty Kitty Blue Eyes," current hit, and the title tune. At the Grand Thursday, Friday and Saturday is a new Hopalong Cassidy adventure, "Mystery Man," starring William Boyd. Tonight's double feature at the Grand is "Delinquent Daughters" with June Carlson, Fifi D'Orsay and Teala Loring; and "Call of the South Seas" with Janet Martin, Allan Lane and Dick Alexander.

PLEADS INSANITY IN DROWNING CASE

COSHOCTON, Oct. 4.—Warren Patterson, 31, today pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a first degree murder indictment in the drowning of his 18-months-old son, Larry, at midnight last Wednesday. After the arraignment, Prosecutor Russell E. Lyons said he would ask that the father be committed to Lima State hospital for a 30-day observation period. He said he expected to present the application to Common Pleas Judge J. C. Daugherty Friday.

Attorney Hoy Russell of Millersburg, counsel for Patterson, said he would offer no objections to the commitment. Prosecutor Lyons said that the Coshocton machinist admitted in a signed statement that he stood on a bridge and dropped two of his four small sons, Baby Larry and Raymond, 7, into the Mohican river because he did not have a home for them. Patterson also said, according to the prosecutor, that he planned to "get rid of" his twin sons, Gene and Glenn, 8, the same way, but "hadn't the heart."

Day and night our gallant pilots have taken their big sky transports from India into China across a field of towering mountains which form one of nature's most cruel traps for man.

I've been over the "hump" in a sail, and I take my hat off to our pilots. Naturally the transport fleet hasn't been able to move vast quantities of material, but our daily quota of foodstuffs, medicines and war equipment has been a blood transfusion. Meantime that great fighting outfit, the 14th airforce, has acted as guardian angel of the Chinese ground forces. Time and again the 14th has saved the day for our Allies. They're doing it at this minute in battling to slow down the Japanese drive in Kwangsi province. Good luck to 'em!
